Understanding Migration: Push and Pull Factors

Instructions: Read the following paragraph and use the information to complete the chart below.

Tomba lives in a country where there is a civil war. The war has continued for 8 years, and many people have died. It is dangerous in Tomba's town.

The war makes it hard for the farmers to plant their crops and hard for them to harvest their crops. It is too dangerous to work in the fields. So there is not enough food to eat.

Tomba's father decided they should move to a nearby country where it would be safer. It would be hard to move, but they could live in peace in the new country. And they could live with Tomba's grandparents and work on his grandparents' farm. They would have enough to eat. And it would be nice to see his grandparents every day.

Tomba knows it will be difficult to move to a new home. But he also thinks his father is right. It is time to move.
